

Advancing ISU's Women Faculty

Strategies for Being Productive and Getting Recognized

At this workshop, you will:

- Learn specific strategies for increasing productivity, teaching efficiently, serving strategically, and building strong, healthy professional relationships.
- Identify why and how to connect with communities of support and accountability.
- Discuss common challenges underrepresented faculty face.
- Hear the three biggest mistakes that underrepresented faculty make.
- Meet and network with your colleagues within the college.

LAS women research faculty are invited to a workshop on

Friday, Sept. 16, 2016

9 a.m. - 12 p.m.

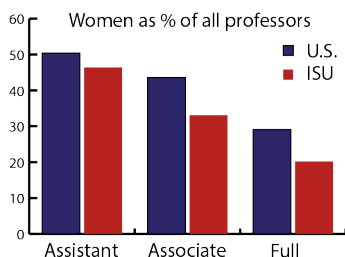

Lunch will be served afterward.

1204 Kildee Hall

To register, please visit

<http://www.facultydiversity.org/events/register.aspx?id=824326>

The facilitator, Dr. Joy Gaston Gayles, is associate professor of higher education at North Carolina State University, where she specializes in diversity and equity issues. This workshop comes from NCFDD's "Solo Success: How to Thrive in the Academy When You're the Only _____ in Your Department."

The percentage of faculty who identify as women is lower at all ranks at ISU than nationally. This event was organized by women faculty, for women faculty, to strengthen the pipeline. Questions? Contact Dr. Tracy Lucht (tlucht@iastate.edu) or Dr. Amy Erica Smith (aesmith2@iastate.edu).

SPONSORED BY VICE PRESIDENT'S OFFICE FOR DIVERSITY & INCLUSION, ADVANCE, COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS & SCIENCES, DEPT. OF COMPUTER SCIENCE, DEPT. OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, GREENLEE SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM AND COMMUNICATION